I expect my code to work well since it produced identical results to the tests, other than the comma that we have been told to ignore since it's a test environment problem rather than a problem in the program